Court convened at Carlsbad to-day.

The Territorial fair begins next week.

The county commissioners are in session.

This is the kind of weather that has made New Mexico famous.

All indications point to prosperous times in all lines of business this fall.

The first steps will be taken this week to change the organization of the town.

There are more cant-elopes than can-elopes in the Pecos valley. Elopements here are rare articles of news.

Mr. Attorney General Knox, the people of New Mexico would be greatly obliged to you if you were to present to the president the fact that it is very important for the best interests of this commonwealth that the vacancy on the supreme bench of the Territory should be immediately filled by a New Mexico applicant.

There will be no knocks on such a proposition.

Mr. Carnegie has again expressed a wish to die poor. New Mexico can help him. Let him come here, bring this Territory in as a state and then run for United States Senator and his ambition will have been fully realized when the New Mexico statesmen and politicians of the two great parties get through with him. He will be a plucked bird, indeed.—New Mexican.

Why in New Mexico? There are many more states where he could be even more rapidly relieved of his money.

Stop It.

During the past week there have been reports circulated that several business houses were about to close out their business. Like the proverbial banquet ghost these reports would not down. In only one instance has there been any foundation for such reports. In this issue one business man has found it necessary to contradict in print one of these rumors so persistently has it been circulated. Sometimes reports of this character are started maliciously, and at other times it is hard to account for their origin.

But however started they are always annoying and many times damaging in dollars and cents. This is a kind of news that people should not pass along unless they have absolute proof of its correctness. Its circulation not only damages the business it is directed against, but it damages the town and is helpful to no one. Where there is no tale bearer the fire soon goes out, and if there were no willing tongues to carry this kind of gossip such reports would "die a-bornin'" and be given the short life they deserve.

The moral is don't pass such reports along unless you are absolutely sure of their correctness. They are damaging to the town and to every business man and do good to no one.

The Bids For County Work.

The board of county commissioners of Chaves county, N. M. will consider sealed bids for painting, papering and calkmining the court house, jail and coal house in Roswell as per specifications on file in the Probate clerk's office at Roswell. All bids must be to furnish the very best material and workmanship. No other kind of bid will be considered. Work to begin as soon as contract is awarded and pushed to completion. All bids must be filed with the Probate clerk at Roswell N. M. not later than 10 o'clock a. m. Monday, Oct. 5, 1903. Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. By order of the Board Sept. 9, 1903. W. M. ATKINSON, Chairman.

Business Change.

The California Store, owned by J. Calisher & Company was sold today to Denitz & Isaacs and will hereafter be known as THE Famous. These latter gentlemen are also proprietors of THE Famous at Amarillo, and are pushers and most enterprising business men.

It is always a source of regret to have any of the old business firms sell, and J. Calisher & Company have always enjoyed a good business and the confidence of the trading public. But the new proprietors come with the highest recommendations as business men and will doubtless enjoy from the first a splendid patronage.

32 Years in the Penitentiary.

Mrs. Jim Johnson, a black negress the wife of Jim Johnson the Chinese laundryman, returned to the city yesterday from Mineral Wells, Texas where she has been attending court. Her daughter May Washington was murdered by her husband, and he was sentenced to 32 years in the penitentiary.

One Ticket Cost $263.

Elmer Beers and wife will leave today for an extended trip to all of the western states and will tour old Mexico also before they return to the city. Mr. Beers has one ticket which cost him $263. He is a prominent ranchman and lives south of the city.

Tearing Down Land Mark.

Workmen have begun tearing down the old Hampton building on Main street north of the Joyce-Pruit Company, preparatory to the erection of a modern banking house for the Roswell National Bank.

Official Varmint Catcher.

Jesse Van Winkle, the official varmint catcher for the Whiteman zoo had bad luck on his last trip and did not catch a thing.

Here is something that will make us all weep: "Tenderly she laid the silent white form beside those that had gone before. She made no outcry, she did not weep. Such a moment was too precious to be spent in idle tears. But soon there came a time when it seemed as if nature must give way. She lifted her voice and cried loud and long. Her cry was taken up by others that were near and it echoed and re-echoed over the grounds. Then suddenly all was still. What was the use of it all? She would lay another egg to-morrow."

Mrs. S. B. Easley of San Antonio is expected to arrive here today to join her husband, and they will make Roswell their future home and will be the guests of Mrs. Barrett on N. Main street.

Charles F. Brown of Dyersburg, Tennessee, who came here on a visit a few weeks ago, returned this morning to his home. He is highly pleased with Roswell and will return and locate here.

M. C. Knabe of Carlsbad is in the city.

THE ATHLETE'S HEART.

In the Rowing Man It is Strong and Well Developed.

A prominent member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania Medical school has made a study of the heart action of athletes. He has examined a large number of men in athletics, especially rowing men, and he has come to the conclusion that no man in perfect health who has been properly trained is injured by rowing, but that, on the contrary, his heart is so strengthened that, with a moderate amount of exercise after he has finished his rowing career, there is no reason, so far as the heart and lungs are concerned, that he should not live to a very old age.

"The heart," said he, "is both a very delicate and a very strong organ—that is, if it is well developed it will stand an enormous amount of strain without any permanent injury, but if it is not well developed it is very easily weakened. Violent exercise, like rowing, places a great deal of strain on the heart because when the body is being exerted it requires so much more pressure to force the blood through the body. Like any other muscle that is worked, the heart under the added labor becomes larger, and most athletes have extra large hearts, just as they also have larger muscles throughout the body.

"If the strain is put upon the heart suddenly it dilates—it becomes larger, but not more muscular—and that is the danger in athletics. If a man exercises gradually then his heart also increases in size gradually because the muscles become larger, and this is a perfectly normal condition. It simply means that the athlete has a stronger heart than the average and can cope with the extra strain that is put upon it. A man needs a larger heart to row a race, and if gradual exercise has so provided him with one then he can safely undergo the most severe tests.

"It is the same way with the lungs, and they must be developed gradually until they can undertake the extra work. A man with his heart and lungs well developed is in no danger, no matter how hard the race. He may completely keel over at the end of the race, but it will likely be from sheer exhaustion, and his heart is so strong that the effect is not at all injurious. He will be as good as ever in a few moments."—Philadelphia Record.

APHORISMS.

The only way to have a friend is to be one.—Emerson.

What we learn with pleasure we never forget.—Mercier.

Opposition inflames the enthusiast, never converts him.—Schiller.

True merit is like a river—the deeper it is the less noise it makes.—Hazlitt.

The eye of the master will do more work than both of his hands.—Franklin.

Experience takes dreadfully high school wages, but he teaches like no other.—Carlyle.

Kindness is the only charm permitted to the aged; it is the coquetry of white hairs.—Fenillet.

If we had no failings ourselves we should not take so much pleasure in finding out those of others.—Rochefoucauld.

A Brilliant Retort.

After dinner speaking is an art, and, like many other arts, its excellence has much to do with the mood of the artist. Some of the best of our after dinner speakers sometimes fail, but it is not often that failure results in the enrichment of the world's store of epigrams, as it did in the case of Lord Erskine many years ago.

When Lord Erskine was made a member of that highly honorable body, the Fishmongers' Company of London, he made an after dinner speech on the occasion of his first appearance among them as a member. Upon his return he said to a friend:

"I spoke ill today and stammered and hesitated in the opening."

"You certainly floundered," was the reply. "but I thought you did so in compliment to the fishmongers."

The Prattle of a Bright Child.

At times it cannot be denied the questions of children become irksome, but who would wish a child to ask no questions? Julius Sturm tells in one of his pretty fairy tales how a grandfather, driven into impatience by the constant questioning of his grandchild, exclaimed, "I wish your tongue were out of joint!" But when unexpectedly his wish was fulfilled and the child became dumb how he joyfully exchanged one of the two years which an angel had prophesied he was yet to live for the privilege of hearing the little one's prattle again!

Speechmaking.

"What do you think of my speech?" said the aspiring young orator.

"Not bad," said the cold man of experience.

"I devoted a great deal of thought to it."

"Yes, that's a mistake young men are apt to make. You put thoughts into your speeches instead of telling the audience stories."

Even at That.

Gus—The idea of his saying I had more money than brains! Quite ridiculous!

Jack—That so?

Gus—Of course. Why, I haven't got a cent.

Jack—Well?—Philadelphia Ledger.

Comes High.

Knicker—Experience is the best teacher.

Bocker—Well, aren't we always raising her salary?—Harper's Bazar.
